

IN THE CLAIMS:

Please cancel claim 1 without prejudice. Please amend claims 2-13 and add claim 14, all according to the status list of pending claims as follows:

STATUS OF CLAIMS

- AI
1. (Canceled)
 2. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to ~~claim 1~~ claim 14 wherein the number selector comprises a ball selector which, when actuated, randomly singulates one of a plurality of numbered, agitated balls contained within a chamber, the number on the singulated ball being the selected number.
 3. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to claim 2 wherein the chamber contains thirty-eight balls, each ball marked with a different number, the numbers ranging from one to thirty-eight, inclusive.
 4. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to claim 2 wherein each ball selected is blown to the top of the chamber and into a singulating chute communicating with the chamber.
 5. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to claim 2 wherein the display comprises:
 - (a) a structure affixed to the table top and disposed, in part, above the number selector,
 - (b) a camera affixed to the structure proximate the singulated ball for viewing the number on the ball, and
 - (c) a display screen affixed to the structure for displaying ~~to participants and observers of the game~~ the camera's view of the singulated ball.
 6. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to ~~claim 1~~ claim 14 wherein the table's table top's number indicia resembles the indicia of a conventional roulette table, and wherein indicia numbers thirty-seven and thirty-eight are used in place of the conventional indicia numbers zero and double zero.

7. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to ~~claim 1~~ claim 14 wherein the number selector comprises:

- (a) a numerical processor proximate the table,
- (b) software installed in the processor for selecting a number at random, when actuated, and
- (c) a display communicating with the processor for displaying the selected number, ~~the display being clearly viewable by all the players at the table.~~ number.

8. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to claim 7 wherein the random number is selected from a range of one to thirty-eight, inclusive.

9. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to claim 7 further comprising a CRT communicating with the processor by which a dealer controls the software.

10. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to claim 7 further comprising a remote control communicating with the processor for activating the software for selecting a random number.

11. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to claim 10 wherein the random number is selected from a range of one to thirty-eight, inclusive.

12. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to ~~claim 1~~ claim 14 wherein the number selector comprises:

- (a) a deck of numbered cards,
- (b) a shuffler for arranging the cards in a random sequence, and
- (c) a structure for assisting a dealer in singulating one numbered card from the shuffled deck.

13. (Currently amended) The game apparatus according to claim 12 wherein the display comprises the singulated card disposed to allow all players at the table to view the number on the card.

Cont
A1
14. (New) Apparatus for playing a game of chance generally according to conventional roulette rules, the apparatus comprising:

- (a) a table top including roulette game indicia for placing bets thereupon but without a roulette wheel;
 - (b) a selector which when actuated for a game produces a randomly selected number from a set of numbers, each number of the set respectively corresponding to a slot on a conventional roulette wheel in which a roulette ball can come to rest;
 - (c) a display adjacent the table top for displaying the selected number, the display being so disposed as to render the displayed number viewable by the players at the table top.
-